The following questions should be thoroughly answered for the grant application to be complete:

1. State the community need or opportunity the new ministry will address. How did the congregation become aware of this need? How will the community be involved in the development of this new ministry?
2. State the expected outcomes for the new ministry and how these outcomes will be measured.
3. List the steps that will be taken to implement the new ministry. Include who will oversee each step and give a timeline for each step.
4. State if this new ministry will be in collaboration with other congregation(s) or community agencies. Include the name and role of each collaborative partner.
5. Include a new ministry budget and budget narrative.
6. Include a statement from the pastor expressing congregation support for the new ministry.
7. Are there plans to fund this new ministry beyond the life of the grant? If so, share those plans here.
